YOUTHFUL MURDERERS.

As stated in yesterday's Gazette the sensation caused in Vineland, N. J., Tuesday night by the arrest of Walter Zeller and Oline Wheeler, charged with the murder of William Read, the aged grandchild of Zeller, was followed yesterday by the capture of Herbert Grigg, an alleged accomplice, at the home of relatives in Philadelphia. Grigg, who was implicated in the crime by the confession of Zeller, denied any knowledge of the murder when arrested, and it has not been clearly established who killed the aged man. Zeller, who was first arrested, declared that he knew nothing of the actual killing of his grandchild. He said that he stood outside the house while Wheeler and Grigg went inside to rob the aged man, who was quite wealthy. Zeller told the detectives that Wheeler beat the old man then shot him, and that he knew of the murder only when Wheeler and Grigg came out and told him.

The confession of Zeller was followed yesterday by one from Wheeler, in which he is said to have accused Zeller of previously trying to poison his grandfather by placing poison in his coffee. Wheeler is alleged to have implicated Grigg, and says that when the three went to the house Friday night Mr. Read was asleep in his room. Grigg, Wheeler is declared to have asserted, placed his hand over the aged man's mouth and made a grab for his pocket-book. He did not get the wallet, and quickly stole Read's revolver from under his pillow. A shot was fired by Grigg, but it went wide of the mark. The aged man recognized his grandson and Zeller is alleged to have said: "We will have to kill him." A fight followed in which Read was shot and killed.

Wheeler is not credited with having said who fired the fatal shot. A .32-caliber cartridge found in Grigg's pocket when arrested is considered a damaging bit of evidence in the case. The youth says he has carried the cartridge as a pocket piece for sometime, but it is regarded as significant that it is the same kind of cartridge as that used in the revolver with which Read was shot. The accused say they did not rob the house after the shooting, because they were afraid, but a considerable sum of money is missing, and the authorities are satisfied they have not yet secured all the details of the affair. The accused boys are members of reputable families.

JILTED THE DUKE.

A dispatch from Rome says Miss Katherine Elkins jilted the Duke of the Abruzzi. The duke has publicly admitted it.

This admission appeared yesterday in Italy's Abruzzi, in a review edited by Signor Pellegrini, who was secretary to former Premier Zanardelli. It is written by Signor Montegazza, a monarchist, with being the mouthpiece of credited the court. He says: "The Duke of the Abruzzi already would have married Miss Elkins, but without giving her the rank of royal highness, if she had been raised simply to become his wife. This, however, she refused, not understanding that a girl in her position in Europe would not have objected. Americans seem to think that their dollars can buy even relationship with one of the oldest reigning houses in Europe."

Between the lines of the foregoing dispatch those familiar with court etiquette and procedure, and with the events of the Abruzzi Elkins affair, see much more than appears. But meager as is the print it is the first official word that has come from the duke or the court regarding this much-mooted matter.

The writer, by implication, admits the engagement, which hitherto has not been admitted by either party, and the long negotiations which have been going on between Italy and the United States are indicated plainly.

The bitter feeling that the refusal of Miss Elkins to accept anything short of full wifely rights created is scarcely hidden. In fact, the Italian press is daily growing more resentful against the newspapers of America for their comment on the affairs of the duke and Miss Elkins.

DOG HUNTS HOSPITAL DOOR.
For almost a week a small black and tan dog has been hanging around the main entrance to the Roosevelt Hospital, New York, night and day, and when George Stengue, an orderly, tried to drive him away because his howling disturbed patients the dog bit Stengue on the hand.

The doctors say that the dog undoubtedly belongs to a patient who was brought to the hospital several days ago suffering from injuries he had received. He was still unconscious and it could not be learned who he is.

Try Kolod today on our guarantee. Take it for a while, as that is all you will need to take. Kolod digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. It is sold by W. F. Creighton & Co.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unapproachable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dissolved and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 75c, including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.
